

NEW-YORK DAILY TRIBUNE, SUNDAY, JULY 18, 1868.—SIXTEEN PAGES.

vention in Indiana are supposed to have been in the President's mind when he wrote that order.

SOLDIERS PARADE FOR HOME RULE.

THE 60TH REGIMENT GEYS A WARM WELCOME AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

The review and dress parade by the 60th Regiment in the Madison Square Garden last evening after the week's work by the men at the State camp was a brilliant ending of their trip and was also a fitting close for the present at least to the efforts of Eugene Kelly's Hoffman House committee in raising money to aid the protracted struggle in Ireland for Home Rule. The committee appointed by Colonel Cavanagh, Adjutant Moran, Captain Hugh Coleman and Captain Kerr worked during three weeks with the sub-executive committee of the Irish Parliamentary Fund Association, and if there was not a larger attendance it was not the fault of the organizers. The entrance money did not keep anybody out of the Garden, but the heavy oppressive atmosphere kept away thousands who would have liked to go in, but satisfied themselves by strolling through the Square and spending up one mighty cheer of welcome as each steady step the men in blue marched past with Hall's excellent band playing sprightly Irish and American national airs. They marched down Twenty-third Street and went into the building by the Fourth-avenue entrance, the band this time playing "The Rising of the Moon," and the spectators standing on the seats and waving their hats and handkerchiefs and waving their hands in eagerness to give a grand military salute a hundred thousand well-wishers toted distinctively Irish regalia with pride in their eyes and the flag of the Union over them.

The evening's entertainment should have begun at 8 o'clock, but the steamer that brought the regiment from Peekskill was not moored at the foot of West Twenty-third until a little after that hour. These are the names of the field and staff officers who headed the regiment as it marched across Twenty-third:

Colonel James Cavanagh, Adj'tant James Moran, Lieutenant-Colonel William De Lucy, Major Edward Duffy, Surgeon A. W. Ford, Assistant Adj'tant W. C. Conroy, Quartermaster J. J. Ward, Commissioner John J. Lyman, Inspector of the Engineers James G. Wallace, Captain W. P. Brown, Officer of the Day Captain Benjamin P. Ryan, First Lieutenant Paul F. Mulligan, Officer of the Guard Edward L. McMurtry. These are the names of the Captains of Companies—C. Dehme, C. McMurtry, J. J. Lyman, C. Cox, E. H. Hall, F. H. Mann, F. Thomas Martin, G. Cunningham, K. John Martin, Dr. J. A. Vail, and others.

Major McMurtry seemed disappointed when they got ashore on looking around and seeing so many empty seats. One seat in the house with all the reserved seats was only sparsely occupied. The boxes, however, were all taken, and if not all occupied were very nearly so.

The tournament was adjourned until Monday noon, the following being the scores for the first half of play:

Won.	Lost.	Won.	Lost.
Mackenzie.....	41	Follett.....	29
Blackburne.....	42	Lippeau.....	29
Taunay.....	44	Bart.....	29
Zorkert.....	32	Morriison.....	49
Gough.....	32	Hannah.....	49
Scandop.....	3

SUMMER LIFE AT SARATOGA.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, July 17.—A large colony of Cubans is summering at the Everett House. At the hotel held their yesterday evening the national dance of Cuba was danced.

Secretary Wheatley, of the Saratoga Racing Association, expects that there will be 440 racehorses here by next Saturday. They are worth fully $1,000,000.

Mrs. Anna Edwards Franks, the wife of Nicanor Franks, entertained the Kensington ducie guests in her parlor yesterday evening. She sang an air "La Jailed," "Ave Maria," from Glorié, and the ballad "Dramming" by Wellington.

The top hop at the Glorié Hotel to-night proved to be a brilliant affair. The introductory hop for the season at the United States Hotel will be given on July 24.

The regular morning prayer-meeting was led this morning by the Rev. Dr. J. E. Rankin, of Orange, N. J.

Nicholas Brock, of New York City, a consummate, died here yesterday.

Among the output appointments for to-morrow are the Rev. Dr. A. C. Vail, of New York; Dr. J. E. Rankin, of Orange, N. J.; the Rev. Dr. C. E. Lindsey of New Haven, the Rev. Dr. A. W. Spragg, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Professor K. L. Moore, of Boston; Dr. H. H. Angier, of Troy; Dr. M. Owen, of Utica; Mr. Whiting, of Mrs. E. M. Dexter of Providence; Capt. A. M. St. John, of Albany; and Miss Mary C. St. John, of Utica. The martial exercises included a battalion drill, a dress parade, Battalion drill came first. The men went through the motions of armament, and then the Battalion drill came second. In the evening past, the reviewing stand, after which General Porter descended from the platform, was the critical eye of the Assistant-General passed over the ranks the long while the line looked fine, and it was the opinion of every body who had an opinion to offer that the men were well drilled and housed, and looked the picture of well drilled soldiers. A each different division was gone through closely and without a hitch, the spectators gave a hearty ovation.

Major General and General Porter alternately, Commissioner J. P. Farrel, "The Little Napoleon" of the Irish Parliamentary Fund Association, was reported to have been to the review on July 20, 200 recruits to the 60th within the next month. Professor Bayard came in for a great deal of applause, for the well selected musical programme that he had arranged.

MONEY FOR FARNELL.

The following additional subscriptions were received yesterday at the office of the Irish Parliamentary Fund Association:

By The Sun.

Michael Davis Orange, Friends of Ireland.....$8.00
N. J. Church.....$5.00
Church of the Sacred Heart, Southbury.....$3.00
Hartford, Conn. N. J. 10.50

The total amount of subscriptions received this week is $13,000.43.

MOSCOW BURNED IN FIRE STYLE.

Fully seven thousand people witnessed the burning of Moscow last night at Manhattan Beach. A second edition of the scene, with rearrangement of effects by Henry J. Bain, was presented with the intention of eclipsing all previous presentations of the conflagration, and the spectators from their applause seemed to believe that the efforts had succeeded. The scene opened with bombs in the shape of sky-rockets bursting in beautiful and variegated colors over the miniature city, which was faintly lighted with electric lights. The Russian troops then marched in and went through a short drill, several athletic features were introduced, and also various scenes. The coming attack of the French was announced by a repetition of bombs, which rapidly increased in size, until the sky was filled with colors of red, white, blue, green, yellow, and gold. While the scene was being given the Russian National Guard marched from the camp, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings, churches, and houses, sank into flaming ruins. Burning spars and burning beams were hurled into the river below, and the scene was a picture of desolation. There about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of damage was begun, and the vast amphitheatre was lit up magnificently. A great wheel, winding up from the engine, the French troops began their attack from both sides and their war was filled with flashes of powder and smoke as they forced their way into the fortress. The men acted on the scene as though they were in battle, and were seen in bright streamers of flames leaping out in the large church at the right and the tower at the left. The flames spread rapidly, and soon the town was seen enveloped in a dense smoke, which was followed by the appearance of the huge buildings